

For example, a short film from the USA called "Don't shoot the messenger", explains in an amusing way, the life of a sign language interpreter who must interpret during an argument between a deaf employee and his boss.

Consequently, the Enable festival helps spectators reflect on the role of disabled people in society.

Short videos are a great channel to raise awareness of social inclusion.

The Enable Festival explains, through everyday experiences, the importance of inclusive education for well-being.
